Supporting Students with ASD - A Course for TAs

Provide effective support to your ASD students inside and outside the classroom

Course reference: 8305ZTC Price: £299+VAT Timings: 10am - 4pm

Significant numbers of children and young people are being diagnosed with an autism spectrum disorder, requiring schools to provide appropriate support to enable them to achieve well and fulfil their potential. It is vital that schools plan and implement effective programmes for young people with ASD; teaching assistants and other support staff have a vital role to play in this. Having an understanding of the nature and effects of an autism spectrum disorder will enable you to provide effective, targeted support and enhance the educational experience and outcomes for students.

Course content

- Recognise the signs of ASD
- Explore what the 'triad of impairments' is, and the implications for providing support
- Understand the effects ASD may have on students' communication, coordination and behaviour
- Identify practical strategies and methods to use in the classroom - and outside it
- Consider and evaluate a range of resources and sources of information and advice
